

THE TEUSNER STORY

It started from an eavesdropped conversation in a Barossa pub in 2001. A couple of grape growers, the Riebkebrothers, were discussing the potential 'grubbing out' of their 85-year-old Grenache vines. Kym's ears pricked up and together with his then brother-in-law, Mick Page, they struck a deal with the Riebke's and saved the vines. Kym's winemaking vision had found its direction and expression.

"To make wines I'd like to drink and which reflect the heritage of the Barossa."

The ancient vines which ignited Kym's passion are not simply old in Barossa terms, these are some of the oldest vines in the world. They are a living history. These old vines combined with Kym's contemporary and gentle approach in the winery is at the core of the winemaking philosophy at Teusner, and our faith in these outstanding vineyards drives our continual pursuit of excellence for the wines we proudly produce.
